

Montessori in July

Dear Parents,

I hope you enjoy these photos of your children engaged in our Montessori program for the month of July. In keeping with Gianne's theme of colour exploration I added coloured viewers and a primary colour pattern game to the babies shelves. As you can see in the photos, the babies also continued to enjoy pouring this month and matching animal figurines to animal cards. Making the animal sounds was lots of fun too!

I introduced dry polenta pouring to the toddler group this month. Although messy at times, it was definitely engaging and as you will see in the last page of photos the preschool children eagerly helped to clean up any spills.

The play dough Montessori trays have proven to be very popular and I have been making a point of involving the preschool children in the process of making up the dough. This month we made play dough for a construction site themed tray and a creative loose parts tray, both of which have been enjoyed. I will continue to make up trays of this nature based on the children's current interests. Recently there has been a lot of talk of fairies and the beach so this will definitely provide some inspiration for my trays for the coming month.

Kaitlyn & Gracie exploring their room through the coloured viewers

BABIES

TODDLERS

(clockwise from top left: key lock money box, dry pouring, success with dry pouring, large dropper, baster, carrying trays with care, rock scrubbing and pouring)

PRESCHOOLERS

(clockwise from top left: bug matching activity, making playdough, baster, sweeping, key lock money box, small pipette water transfer and table sweeping)

